ITEMS FROM MINERALDOM.

Active Work on Both Lead and Zinc Properties.

Deeper Development to be Made in The Fluor Spar Mines.

EVERYBODY GETTING INTERESTED.

The advent of Spring has quickened the work of the various mining companies throughout the two counties of Crittenden and Livingston. On the first instant preparatory work was commenced on the Memphis. Increased depth will be made, a working shaft established, and an extensive drift run to tap the three or four veins that have been prospected on the surface and are pretty likely to be found equally strong at the depth contemplated before running the drift. The Memphis has always been one of our notable producers of number one white fluor spar, and it is very certain that under the guidance of Capt Postlethwaite the Memphis will be made to discharge its usual annual tribute of spar.

The old Columbia, the mine from which so much lead and zinc has been extracted in years past, and which has been our show place, the museum from which countless specimens of lead and zinc and fluor spar have been taken and distributed throughout the country, that, too, after a very long period of desuetude has had the fires started under the boilers, the pumps set a-going and the miners are sharpening their drills and pointing their picks preparatory to an onslaught on the magnificent vein of galena and zinc blende that the deepest shaft in the district contains. Prof. Drescher will remain at the tiller ropes and guide the Columbia to a dividend paying harbor.

Out Salem way the American Fluor Spar, Zinc and Lead Company have during the past few weeks installed a most complete plant of mining machinery at their Bonanza mine. They are drilling with the highest type of compressed air drills, using all the latest improved Rocky Mountain deep mining machinery that the best Denver mechanics produce. We were told last Saturday that the shaft and drifts were in solid fluor spar, with lead disseminated throughout. This product will likely be jigged, the galena going to the lead smelters and the fluor spar sold to the steel works, glass producers and acid works. Messrs. Drake, Barnes & Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, deserve more than ordinary credit in bringing to a successful issue such a handsome producer.

About Mexico station, on the Illinois Central eight miles South of Marion, active work has never ceased during the winter months. Night and day fluor spar has been broken down, washed and carted to Mexico station, where Mr Bibbs has been kept busy making out weighing certificates and loading cars for the North and South, and even the Dominion of Canada has become a regular consumer of our fluor spar.

Crayneville, the suburb that Major Clements drove over on purpose to see, is the shipping point of the Hodge mine. This also has been a busy place during the winter months. The Hodge, under the care of Mr. Eugene Squiers, is a heavy producer and shipper, the fluor spar being sold to both grinders, smelters, glass workers and enamellers. There has been considerable prospecting done during the past few months on other parts of the company's property, and a very strong body of gravel spar, similar to that of the Yandell mine has been established. Active work in improving the transportation facilities to the railroad station, which of course means cheaper production on board cars, will be commenced shortly and continued until Crayneville is in touch with the mine.

Major Haas, of Salem, has been quietly but persistently introducing into the I. C. freight cars at Mexico tons of gravel fluor spar from his property in that vicinity called the Asbridge mine. The quality is first-class and the present demand seems to be greater than the combined production of all of our fluor spar properties; in fact the North and East seem to have adopted the motto, "You can't get too much of a good thing" and are acting accordingly.

Several prospect shafts are being put down near the Mexico station, on the Myers land. One under the direction of Colonel Jim Henry, of Marion, shows very handsomely in fluor spar and heavy galena disseminated throughout the spar. While the Colonel thinks some of the land in that immediate vicinity is too poor to raise an umbrella on he has great confidence that poor land produces fine mineral; in other words, you get a better crop from the lower side. A shaft is also being put down on a great vein of barytes, close to the Illinois Central railroad, the barytes being exposed in the deep cut just south of the station platform. The Illinois Central is somewhat remiss in leaving Mexico totally unprovided, so far as depot facilities are concerned. It is not at all conducive to a man's moral status to be compelled to wait for a train that happens to be an hour or two late, when he is exposed to the various kinds of weather that Mexico can produce when she feels like it. One's Sunday school instructions are apt to be forgotten, and the fourth letter of the alphabet is used in all kinds of ways.

Major Haas is keeping his drills hot in the great lead showing of the Eagle fluor spar property at Salem. As stated in these columns some weeks since, the vein of galena is much greater than anticipated at the first showing.

The Chicago Mining Company at the Bigham mines near Marion depot, commenced drifting Monday morning. The solid vein of fluor spar at 75 feet is much denser, more compact and of a higher per centage in calcium fluoride than the vein at the top indicated. The color of the spar has gradually changed from nearly a black color to that of a light gray. A second shipment from this vein was made last week.

It is understood that the Morning Star, at Salem, is not only holding its own, but if possible improving. A recent writer in a trade paper stated that at Salem one entire shaft product was solid fluor spar, analyzing 99.85 of calcium fluoride. It's too bad that this fifteen hundredths of one per cent was not also calcium fluoride. It puts one in mind of the old lady who was taken suddenly ill at the age of ninety nine years and ten months. When told by her physician that she could not survive but a few hours she became extremely agitated, and when gently reminded that she had already lived to a good old age, she replied that she had always wanted to live long enough to touch "par."

That the interest in our district is growing is evidenced by the numerous arrivals of men who want to see the ground for themselves. All possible facilities are offered the new arrivals, and as we are sure the owners of mineral bearing lands will meet such people at least half way, and that many a shaft will be put down before the close of summer. This work means much to the business men of Marion in a financial way; altogether too much to continue that pessimistic disposition regarding our mineral veins, that from time to time has been noticed in the past. Next to enthusiasm over our veins, let us have good roads, good water and electric lights on our streets.

For the benefit of our outside readers who may be interested in the development of our mineral resources, and to those who desire to become interested in this district the following may be of service: The mineral is found in fissure and contact veins, similar in all respects to those of the extreme West, and it is developed on the same general lines; that is, by sinking a prospect shaft on the vein. If the mineral warrants, which so far has been the almost universal rule, putting down a straight working shaft, drifting to the mineral bearing vein and raising the ore through the working shaft. The ores found in generous paying quantities are those of lead and zinc. The zinc ores being zinc blende, carbonates and silicates, showing an extremely high per centage of zinc in all three, the gangue or foreign matter is generally fluor spar or lime in the shape of calc spar. Much of the zinc blende, that is, zinc similar to the Joplin production, is in such massive form, and so free from other material that the smelters will buy it, paying a good price for the same without the usual Joplin process of washing or concentration. Hand dressing will remove most of the calc and fluor spar from zinc of this character, rendering it marketable without the great expense of erecting mills for concentration. The ordinary Joplin jig will separate the lead from the spar, making both articles saleable commodities. The mineral veins are of great width and generally strongly filled. The land is owned in fee simple by the residents, who are largely engaged in tobacco and live stock raising, as well as in the usual small grains. Leases can be made with an option clause giving the privilege of prospecting and development at a small stated price per ton of mineral shipped. To this is usually added the price per acre at which the title to the land may be obtained within a given time. The mineral leases run from ten to twenty-five years. The land owners offer every facility to the man who wants to mine our mineral and care very little about the man who wants to mine some other man. The climate is mild, the people very hospitable, wages for miners and helpers range from 75c to $1.50 per day, of 10 hours. Forty per cent. dynamite is sold in single cases at 13c. per pound. Other mining appliances cost about equal to Joplin prices. Board ranges from $2.50 per week upwards. A man having but little money but full of days work can come to Marion and make a good stake in twelve months by procuring a mining lease on royalty ranging from 50c to $1.50 per ton, according to distance from the railroad.

Mr A. B. Freeman, of Richmond Ky., who has been in the city for ten days, purchased 207 acres of land about eight miles from Marion. This land contains the heavy lead vein opened by Mr. Cox, the owner. Good judges say it is one of the best lead deposits in the county. The price was in the vicinity of $75.00 per acre.

Mr. Henry C. Clark, President of the Chicago Mining Co., who arrived in town last Saturday, has been quite ill for several days. It is possible the presentation of the oratorical medals during his last visit had something to do with it. For a mining man Mr. Clark spoke well, although any one should have acquitted themselves creditably surrounded by such a galaxy of bright eyes and handsome faces. We could have done it ourselves.

A party of gentlemen from Chattanooga are expected here the coming week and may interest themselves in some of our lead and zinc properties.

We would like to see the samples of Joplin zinc ores at our two banks give place to those of Crittenden and Livingston counties. We don't know much about Missouri, but we are proud of Kentucky.

Very complete and really beautiful samples of our zinc, lead, fluor spar, iron and coal will be exhibited by the Illinois Central railroad at their city offices in Chicago, Louisville and Evansville. They were contributed by Messrs. Blue & Nunn, of Marion, and will no doubt be of signal advantage to the residents of our two counties.

Some of the men employed by the Chicago Mining Company had a real good time for a few hours on Saturday evening; the pleasures of the party were somewhat interrupted, however, by our new city marshal, who insisted that several of the gentlemen accept an invitation to the hospitable quarters of jailer Hard. However, the streets bore a typical mining town look for awhile, even if the boys did get it in the neck.

LYNCHING IN MISSOURI.

Dewey Smith, a Negro Miner, Hung by a Mob for Killing a White Miner.

THE MURDER THE SEQUEL TO A QUARREL.

The Murderer Captured at Camden, Whence He Was Taken to a Tree Near the Scene of His Crime, South of Richmond, and Hanged—His Body Left Swinging.

Kansas City, Mo., March 2.—A special to the Star from Camden, Mo., says:

Dewey Smith, a negro miner who, on Friday, shot and killed Chester Stanley, a white miner, at mine No. 4, four miles south of Richmond, Mo., was captured late Friday night, and taken back to the scene of his crime and his body is now hanging to a tree close to the railroad tracks.

Story of the Tragedy.

Stanley and Smith, alias McNeil, alias Bob. McBrien, quarreled over a trivial matter, which resulted in the shooting of Stanley. The negro escaped, but was captured Friday night, at Camden, by two white men. They took him to Burnett's hotel and wired Sheriff Crowley, at Richmond, to come at once. When the sheriff arrived, a large crowd of men from Lexington Junction and Camden were waiting in the street outside the hotel, and cries of "bring him out" and "lynch him" were heard, and a general rush was made on the hotel where the negro was confined. Some one fired a gun. Immediately a dozen shots were fired, and it looked as though a number of people would be killed, but they brought him out without accident.

In the Hands of the Mob.

The cry arose, "take him back to the scene of his crime," "burn him on the pit top," "hang him," and the mob started rapidly for Mine No. 4. A halt was called under a tree near the mine, and the prisoner was given a chance to speak. He confessed to the killing, but said it was in self-defense; that he was sorry, and requested his body be sent to his mother in Kansas City. He then asked if some one would pray for him. One man prayed:

Prayer for Both Victims.

"Oh God, have mercy on the soul of this poor doomed man, and, oh, God, remember and have pity on the soul of the man he murdered."

A rope was placed around the negro's neck and thrown over the limb of a tree, and at 2:23 o'clock Smith was launched into eternity.

Excitement in the Vicinity.

There is still excitement in the vicinity and some talk of lynching a man who is now in jail whom Smith, it is said, charged with being implicated in a plot to kill some men at Richmond and Lexington.

Bad feeling has existed for some time between the negroes and whites, and more trouble is feared.

ROOSEVELT AND FAMILY.

The Vice-President-Elect and Family Leave Oyster Bay for Washington.

THE COLONEL THE PICTURE OF HEALTH.

At Every Station En Route Passengers, Boarding the Train, Insisted on Shaking Hands and Having a Chat—Will Remain Till the Special Session Closes.

New York, March 2.—Vice-President-elect Roosevelt, accompanied by his wife and six children, left Oyster Bay on the eight o'clock train for Long Island City, en route to Washington. The younger children were in charge of a nurse. The baggage of the family was limited to one large and one small satchel.

The Picture of Health.

Col. Roosevelt looked the picture of health. In this city the Roosevelt family were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Robinson, and all boarded the 10:10 ferry boat at Twenty-third street for Jersey City, where they took the train for Washington. At the capital they will be entertained by Lieutenant-Commander and Mrs. W. F. Cowles, Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Cowles are sisters of Col. Roosevelt.

On the way from his home to the railway station, Col. Roosevelt stopped at the post office for his mail. In the wagon with him were his wife and three of his children, the others having gone earlier to the station with the nurse.

At the Railway Station.

On arriving at the station the colonel helped his wife and a nurse and children into the car next to the last. Then he stood on the platform talking with friends until just before the train pulled out. As the train left the station he stood on the rear platform of the second car and waved his hands to the crowd who assembled on the railroad platform. There was no demonstration.

Greetings En Route.

On the Long Island railway train Col. Roosevelt bought several New York newspapers, but he had a difficult time reading them, as at every station passengers boarding the train would insist upon shaking hands with the vice-president-elect and having a chat with him. With Col. Roosevelt was his private secretary, Mr. Leob. Col. Roosevelt has appointed as his personal messenger a colored man named Henry Rineckey. Mrs. Roosevelt and the children will remain in Washington until Tuesday next, when they will return to Oyster Bay.

The colonel will remain in Washington until the close of the special session of the senate, which has been called to take action on nominations by the president.

FATAL POTTERY WORKS FIRE.

One Man Killed and Three Fatally Injured in a Pottery Works Fire at Gas City, Ind.

Gas City, Ind., March 2.—In a fire that destroyed the pottery works owned by D. C. Cox, one man was killed and three others so badly injured that they probably will die. The building was a brick structure and the walls fell in without a moment's warning. John Gurran, a prominent resident, was killed by being caught under the falling walls. Al Rothhouse, a member of the fire department, and a druggist of Gas City, had his head badly crushed. John Elstroth, another fireman, was badly bruised and mangled and his death is expected. D. C. Cox, the owner of the factory, is also in a serious condition. It is feared that other men are buried in the debris. The loss will not exceed $10,000.

GRAZED WHILE IN TRANSIT.

For That Reason the State Has a Right to Tax Sheep Driven Through Wyoming.

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 2.—In the case of John Kelly against County Assessor Rhodes, the supreme court has sustained the decision of the district court, affirming the right of the state to tax sheep which were being driven through the state from Utah to Nebraska. Kelly sought to evade the tax, but the court held that as the sheep grazed while in transit, the tax did not conflict with the interstate commerce laws, on which ground Kelly sought evasion.

Rajah Perhaps Fatally Shot.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 2.—Rajah, the Bengal tiger on exhibition at the Bostock Zoo, in this city, escaped from his cage, Friday, and after attacking a quagga and two lion-tamers, was perhaps fatally shot by Capt. Bonavita.

Admiral Sampson's Memoirs.

New York, March 2.—According to a special to the Press from Boston, it has been ascertained in the Charleston navy yard that Rear-Admiral W. T. Sampson is at work upon a volume of memoirs. Admiral Sampson is non-committal in the matter.

Pope's Ninety-First Birthday.

Rome, March 2.—Pope Leo XIII. celebrates his ninety-first birthday anniversary Sunday. Dr. Mazzoni says: "His Holiness is in marvelous health. He shows no sign of diminishing vigor—a miraculous thing in a man of his age."

SOME POPULATION FACTS and FIGURES

Compiled from Returns of the 12th Census,

BY H. C. LENINGTON.

STATISTICIAN ON POPULATION.

The official under whose direction have been compiled the statistics on population is William C. Hunt. He was born at Charlestown, Mass., and before 20 years of age showed an aptitude as a statistician, being employed in 1875 on a census of the state of Massachusetts. In 1895 he became a statistical expert in the United States department of labor, and held that position until appointed chief statistician for population for the census of 1900.

CLASSIFICATION OF STATES.

Only one state has over 7,000,000 inhabitants—New York. Pennsylvania is alone in the class between 6,000,000 and 7,000,000. Two states, Illinois and Ohio, have between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 inhabitants. Illinois took the lead from Ohio in the census of 1890. In 1880 the positions were exactly reversed, though neither state at that time had anywhere near 4,000,000 people. Texas and Missouri are the two states which number between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000. Missouri had better look out for her laurels. Texas has during the past decade leaped to within 60,000 of as large a population. These two states are showing a remarkably rapid growth.

There are 8 states which have a figure 2 place in the million column. Massachusetts leads with 2,805,346. Then come in order of their rank Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Georgia, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Tennessee. The close race of Georgia and Iowa is to be noted. In the last census they held the same relative position, but then Iowa had a lead of 74,543; now her lead is but 15,522.

It is a peculiar fact that there are as many states having the figure 1 in the million column as there were original states. The two states that head the list of these 13 are North Carolina and New Jersey, and they are making a close race for precedence. North Carolina led in the census of 1890 by a margin of 173,014. Now her lead is only 10,141.

There are 18 states, all the territories (6) and the District of Columbia—25 in all—which have a population of less than 1,000,000. Of these, and indeed of all the states, Oregon and New Hampshire are the nearest to a tie, the former having the lead by less than 2,000, the actual difference being 1,958. The District of Columbia has a lead over the state of Utah of scarcely more, 1,969 being needed by the latter to make a tie. It is to be noted that four of the 13 original states are within the number having a population of less than 1,000,000. These 4 states are Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Delaware. Vermont, the first state to be admitted after the organization of the union, is also in this list.

Some Notable Changes.

Among the most notable changes in the rank of cities which have taken place since 1880 may be mentioned that of Seattle, which has advanced from the 150th to the 48th place; that of Los Angeles from the 135th to the 36th place; that of Duluth from the 156th to the 72d place; that of Kansas City Kan., from the 133d to the 76th place; and that of Portland, Ore., from the 106th to the 42d place. Other notable changes in rank from 1880 to 1900 are Birmingham, from 154 to 99; Tacoma, from 155 to 103; Spokane, from 157 to 105; Dallas (before the flood), from 137 to 88; and Saginaw, from 136 to 89.

HOW STATES HAVE GROWN.

The population of Michigan is more than 508 times as large as that given for 1810, the date of the first census taken in that territory.

Indiana holds second place in the matter of phenomenal increase in population between the taking of the first and of the last census. The inhabitants of the state now number over 446 times what the returns gave in 1800.

Illinois is third in this classification of the states, its population now numbering over 392 times what it did in 1810. The close proximity of these three states is worthy of note, as also is their almost simultaneous settlement.

Minnesota comes fourth in such a classification of the states, but her record is really as wonderful as that of Michigan, for it is to be considered that her first census was taken as late as 1850, at which time Michigan's population was 397,654 and Minnesota's only 6,077. Minnesota now has a population exceeding 288 times the latter figure.

Mississippi has multiplied its population 175 times within the century just closed. The two Dakotas come along each having at the present time a population nearly 150 times as large as at the first census taken in those localities. The Dakotas' increase is really larger, however, than Missouri's, because the comparisons are made with Missouri's census of 1810 and that of the Dakotas in 1860. Ohio has a population 91½ times greater than she had a century ago, and Arkansas' figures show a population now 90 times greater than in 1820.

THE 13 ORIGINAL STATES.

In 1790 the various states in rank of population were as follows: (1) Virginia, (2) Pennsylvania, (3) North Carolina, (4) Massachusetts, (5) New York, (6) Maryland, (7) South Carolina, (8) Connecticut, (9) New Jersey, (10) New Hampshire, (11) Georgia, (12) Rhode Island and (13) Delaware.

The order in rank of these states has considerably changed since the first census, being now as follows: (1) New York, (2) Pennsylvania, (3) Massachusetts, (4) Georgia, (5) North Carolina, (6) New Jersey, (7) Virginia, (8) South Carolina, (9) Maryland, (10) Connecticut, (11) Rhode Island, (12) New Hampshire and (13) Delaware.

Pennsylvania and Delaware are the only ones among the original states at the present time holding the same relative rank in population as in 1790. Pennsylvania is the only one holding the same absolute position, being 2d now as in 1790. Delaware is now 46th in rank among the present states and territories.

In 1790 Virginia was first among the states, and New York 5th. New York is now first and Virginia is 7th among the original states and 17th among all the states and territories of the union.

Georgia has made the most notable leap among the original states in the matter of rank, being 11th in 1790, and 4th now among the original states. Another notable fact in this same connection is that in 1790 the population of the territory now embraced in the state of Maine and the population of what is now Vermont, in each case exceeded in number the population of Georgia. Georgia is still 11th in the column of states, as in 1790, and Maine has been relegated to 30th place and Vermont to 40th. Still another notable fact is the rate of Georgia's growth in the past 110 years as compared with the rate of growth of the other states. Georgia's present population is just under 27 times what it was in 1790. The nearest approach to this among the 13 states is in the case of New York, whose population is about 21 times what it was when the first national census was taken.

CONCERNING VARIOUS STATES

All of North Dakota's 39 counties have increased in population in the past 10 years. Wells county has increased by nearly 600 per cent.; three other counties (Billings, McLean and Pierce), by nearly 500 per cent. The state has 73 incorporated cities, towns and villages.

The population of Nebraska is more than 37 times as large as that given for 1860, the first year in which the population appears in the census report. There are about 14 people to each square mile. One county (Boyd) has shown in the last decade a phenomenal increase, the population now being nearly 10 times greater than in 1890. Nearly two-fifths of the counties of the state have shown a decrease. One county (Hooker) shows in the census report an increase of only 6 for the decade. Lincoln has a population over 3 times as great as in 1880. Omaha's advance has not been nearly so great, but South Omaha has grown very rapidly, and mostly in the past 10 years. This latter city is over three times as great as in 1890.

Illinois has an area of 56,000 square miles, and for each square mile (land surface) there are 86 inhabitants. The past decade has seen a greater increase in population than any previous decade in the history of the state. This increase has lacked less than 5,000 of being 1,000,000. Only 6 counties out of the 102 have shown a decrease in population. All the rest have shown a rather steady advance in the decade. There are 930 incorporated cities, towns and villages in Illinois. In 1840 Chicago had only 4,470 inhabitants. The city's present population of 1,698,575 is over 357 times the former figure. Peoria is the second city in the state, and then come in order the following cities: Quincy, Springfield, Rockford, East St. Louis and Joliet.

All of Minnesota's 82 counties have increased in population since 1890. The largest increase is in Hennepin county, the largest percentage of increase is that of Beltrami, which shows a population 3,435.3 per cent. larger now than 10 years ago. The state numbers 447 incorporated cities, towns and villages. Three cities (Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth) have over 25,000 inhabitants. In 1860 Minneapolis had 2,564 against her present population of 202,718. St. Paul had, in 1850, 1,112 inhabitants against the present showing of 163,065. Duluth

CENSUS ODDS AND ENDS.

Porto Rico has 953,243 people. Guam has a population of 8,561. Tutuila and adjacent islands have 4,165 inhabitants.

The total population of the United States is 76,295,320.

The population of the Philippine islands is estimated at 7,000,000.

The population of Birmingham, Ala., has increased from 3,086 in 1880 to 38,415 in 1900.

It is estimated that there are 84,000 persons in the service of the United States stationed abroad.

Greater New York contains four-fifths as many people as composed the whole republic in 1800.

In round numbers the population of the United States and its lately acquired territory is 85,000,000.

Not counting the national capital, there are 44 towns and cities bearing the name of Washington.

New York city is growing in population at the rate of 99,000 a year, according to the latest municipal figures.

During the last century a total of about 19,000,000 people came from foreign countries to make their homes in the United States.

There are three Springfields in the list of the 159 largest cities: Springfield, Mass., ranks 69 in that number; Springfield, O., 101; and Springfield, Ill., 116.

According to Gov. Crane, 40 per cent. of the population of the state of Massachusetts is included in a circle including ten miles in every direction from the state house.

It has been estimated by experts that the population of this country a century hence will be at least 300,000,000. One estimate puts the figure at 441,009,206. The first estimate is that of Robert P. Porter, the director of the census of 1890; the last is that of the present census office.

Of Ohio 9 cities having a population of over 25,000, Cincinnati and Dayton are the only ones which had an existence as far back as 1810. At that time the former city had 2,540 inhabitants, Dayton only 383. Cincinnati is now over 128 times as large as then, and Dayton about 222 times. Ohio has in 1900 incorporated cities, towns and villages by 249.

It is a curious fact that, in a state that now has 1,370,159 more inhabitants than in 1890, over a third of

PROPORTION OF PEOPLE IN THE GREAT CITIES.

Over one-quarter of the entire population of the country is found in the large cities.

The 159 cities having a population of over 25,000 inhabitants combined have a population of 19,694,625.

No one state in the entire union could furnish a population great enough to people the 5 largest cities.

The population of the 3 largest cities combined would exceed that of the 23 state, Pennsylvania. The population of the 4 largest cities would almost equal the entire population of the Empire state.

The absolute increase in the population of the 159 largest cities from 1890 to 1900 was 4,839,136, or 82,426 less than the absolute increase from 1880 to 1890, when it was 4,921,562. The percentage of increase from 1890 to 1900 was 32.5 against 49.5 the decade previous.

In 1880 there were but 20 cities which contained more than 100,000 inhabitants, but in 1890 this number had increased to 28, and in 1900 to 33. In 1900 there were 78 cities of 50,000 inhabitants or more as compared with 58 in 1890 and 35 in 1880.

The combined population in 1900 of the 19 cities of the first class is 11,795,809 as against a population in 1890 of 8,870,105, representing an increase during the 10 years of 2,916,704, or 32.8 per cent.

The same cities showed an increase from 1880 to 1890 of 2,567,452, or 40.6 per cent.

The population of Greater New York is greater than that of all Missouri, the 5th state of the union, in rank of population. Following the states down according to rank, one does not get quite half-way before reaching 2 whose combined population does not equal that of the country's metropolis. Minnesota and Mississippi (ranking 19th and 20th, respectively) could not together furnish enough people to make a town that would come up to Greater New York in number of inhabitants.

The 19 cities taking the leading rank comprise New York, which with more than 3,000,000 inhabitants, properly stands by itself; 2 cities, Chicago and Philadelphia, each of which has a population in excess of a million; 3 cities, St. Louis, Boston and Baltimore, which have a population of half a million each; 5 cities, Cleveland, Buffalo, San Francisco, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, which have a population between 300,000 and 400,000 each; and 8 cities, New Orleans, Detroit, Milwaukee, Washington, Newark, Jersey City, Louisville and Minneapolis, which have a population between 200,000 and 300,000 each.

CLASSIFIED SIZES OF CITIES.

| CLASSIFICATION. | No. of Cities. | Pop'n in 1900. |
|------------------------------|----------------|-------------------|
| Of 500,000 and over | 19 | 11,795,809 |
| Of 100,000 and up to 500,000 | 19 | 2,412,138 |
| Of 50,000 and up to 100,000 | 40 | 2,709,338 |
| Of 25,000 and up to 50,000 | 81 | 2,776,949 |
| Totals | 159 | 19,694,625 |

In 1880 but 20 cities contained more than 100,000 inhabitants.

Of the cities which contained a population of over 200,000 in the recent census, New York heads the list with 3,437,392. Minneapolis crowns in with but 2,718 more than enough to admit her to the class.

Of the cities containing between 100,000 and 200,000 people Providence, R. I., comes first with 175,597. Scranton, Pa., numbers 102,026 inhabitants.

Lowell, Mass., heads the list of cities having between 50,000 and 100,000 with 49,999 inhabitants. Portland, Me., comes 40th in this class with just 50,145. Harrisburg, Pa., has just 22 more people than Portland.

Yonkers, N. Y., comes first in the last list (cities having more than 25,000 but less than 50,000), its population reaching 47,241. Jackson, Mich., is 81st in this classification and 159th of all the large cities of the United States, having exactly 25,180 inhabitants.

DISTRIBUTION OF CHIEF CITIES.

Massachusetts contains more large cities than any other state in the union. Of the 159 largest cities this old state has 20.

Pennsylvania comes a close second to Massachusetts, with 18 large cities. New York state is third, with 12. The little state of New Jersey is fourth in the list with 10 of the large cities, and Ohio is fifth, having 9. Illinois comes next in line with 7.

Iowa has six large cities within its borders. Five states each have 5 of 159 cities containing a population of 25,000 inhabitants or more. These five states are Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Connecticut and Texas.

The following named states and territories do not at this time contain any city with a population of 25,000 or more: Arizona, Idaho, Indian territory, Mississippi, Nevada, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Vermont and Wyoming.

Thinly Populated Countries.

Texas has 11 counties (out of 243) which have a population of less than 50. Four other countries have less than 100.

The Hoosiers are getting to be mighty handy with a rope. Every few days they have a lynching.

Hon. Jos C. S. Blackburn took his seat in the Senate Monday and nobody undertook to snatch the chair from under him.

Just before retiring from the Senate Senator Lindsey cast a vote or two with the Democrats. He did not begin this in time, however, to reinstate himself.

Bourbon county Democrats have endorsed Judge James E. Cantrell for United States Senator, and it may be added that the Judge is likely to become a factor in the contest.

A canvass of the tax-payers of Marion will show that a large majority of them want electric lights, but the majority for falling upon the plan suggested to procure them is not quite so decisive.

Our fears were well grounded. Henry Allen let the appropriation for Tradewater get knocked out of the Rivers and Harbors bill. As that feature was eliminated, we don't care if the bill was defeated.

Four citizens of Louisville have signed an address calling for a mass meeting to protest against gambling in that city. Wonder if those four were all that could be induced to sign the call.

If Sampson has no better judgment in handling a gun than he has in wielding the pen, it is a good thing for the American people, himself included, that he was not present at the battle of San Juan.

We observe in the court orders that Hon. A. H. Cardin, though beyond the road working age, has voluntarily accepted the oversight of a public road. This kind of spirit will do more to improve the public roads than any law new or old.

In this issue appears the announcement of Mr. Robert W. Wood as a candidate for the legislature. Mr. Wood is one of the most prominent citizens of Piney precinct. He is a plain, unassuming farmer, who has the respect and confidence of all who know him. He is a man of sound judgment, firm convictions, and an unflinching Democrat. His neighbors and friends have several times urged him to make the race for the legislature, but heretofore he has contented himself by faithful service in the ranks. Should he win the nomination he would make a strong race, and should he be elected, he would be faithful to the trust.

SECOND INAUGURATION

Of McKinley Was a Most Brilliant Affair.

William McKinley took his second oath as President of the United States and Theodore Roosevelt was sworn in as Vice President in Washington Monday. The inaugural ceremonies were the most elaborate ever held. The military display was the grandest ever witnessed in Washington and the crowd was one of the largest ever in attendance at such a function.

Mr. Wood Announces.

To the Democrats of Crittenden and Livingston counties: At the solicitation of friends and in accordance with my own feelings and aspirations, I announce myself a candidate for the nomination for representative. I will greatly appreciate your support in this friendly contest, and should I be honored with the nomination and election I shall show my appreciation by a faithful effort to discharge the duties of the position in the way that will be most beneficial to the good people of Crittenden and Livingston counties. Sincerely yours,

R. W. WOOD.

E. L. Doles for Jailer.

Mr. E. L. Doles directs us to announce him a candidate for jailer. He is a popular man in this community; and readily makes friends wherever he goes. Honest, industrious and plain, he would, if elected, make an admirable custodian of the county jail, leaving nothing undone that is necessary in the work of such an officer. He is a genuine Democrat, and would appreciate the honor of the nomination. We commend his claims to the careful consideration of the people.

For Jailer.

Mr. George D. Kemp announces his candidacy for jailer. George is one of the county's good citizens; he would make a splendid officer, and he is and has always been a loyal, deserving Democrat. No man would be prouder of the honor of carrying the party's banner than George, and his party would find him a strong candidate.

Public Speaking.

John W. Skelton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for representative, will address the voters of Crittenden county at the court house on Monday, March 11 1901, at 1.30 p. m. His opponents are respectfully invited to be present and participate, as a fair division of time will be extended.

Mr. B. F. Walker cut a board tree on his farm and up about 8 feet on the body of the tree, in bolting up his cuts he found a large bullet in the tree, about 8 inches in the tree. The bullet was as round as it was when it was shot out of the gun, and from where the ball was it was sixty rings of the tree out to the bark, and as we count each ring one year, it makes it sixty years since that ball was shot. Now, the prediction is that Daniel Boone shot that bullet; that is Mr. Walker's view of the matter. Now if any one don't believe that Dan Boone shot that bullet, let's hear from them in the next issue of the Press. Mr. Walker has the ball and any one can see it by calling on him. The ball is larger than any now in use.

"Old Times Down South."

Among the famous humorists of America Polk Miller ranks first. He is the best delineator of the old Southern plantation negro that has ever appeared on the public stage. In his description of the happy days on the old plantation he introduces the most side-splitting stories and reproduces in a realistic manner those old plantation melodies, accompanied by the laugh which carries the old Southerners back to the days of their childhood. The entertainment is in no sense a lecture but is an evening of song and story in "Old Times Down South." Mr. Miller is under the sole management of the Southern Lyceum Bureau, and comes to our city under a heavy guarantee. The opportunity of being entertained by such a distinguished humorist is not often afforded the people of Marion and Manager Walker, of the opera house, engaged Mr. Miller believing the people would appreciate a rare treat and accord the gentleman a hearty reception. If Mr. Miller is well received by the people it is the intention of Manager Walker to engage such men as ex-Gov. Taylor, of Tennessee, Gen. John B. Gordon, Col. Ham and others of like celebrity to visit our city.

Osteopathy.

FRANKLIN, KY., }
March 4th, 1901.

ED. PRESS: There are many cripples who might be cured and there are many people who are becoming cripples who might have the use of their limbs were the proper steps taken before it is too late.

"Does Osteopathy cure cripples?"
Yes, many cripples are permanently cured by osteopathy. The following is an example of the remarkable cures that are being constantly made by osteopathic physicians. It is also an example of a multitude of cases that have been saved from the surgeon's knife and an untimely death.

Mr. John B. Crofton is a prominent railway engineer formerly living at Bowling Green, Kentucky. He says of his daughter's case:

"In the spring of 1895 my daughter complained of a pain in her right knee. She was taken to one of our best physicians who put this limb in plaster of Paris. Seeing that my daughter was growing weaker and that the knee was getting worse, at my suggestion the physician brought one of the best surgeons in Bowling Green. I asked him if he thought medicine was going to cure her. He said No, I am afraid not. I asked him if he thought amputation necessary. He indicated that this was his idea.

"I took my daughter to Doctor Briggs private infirmary in Nashville, but she gained nothing by her stay there. I heard of Judge Goodnight's wonderful recovery while under treatment by the osteopaths. After visiting him and hearing of what it had done for him and others, I took my daughter there for examination and with out confidence placed her under the treatment. They told me her hip was involved.

My daughter had not been under treatment two weeks before we saw an improvement in her condition. She got so she could sleep and her appetite improved. The doctors objected to our giving laxative medicines, and without medicine to our surprise and gratification, overcame the constipation that had resulted from the use of paregoric.

"She was too weak when she went there to use crutches but the treatment gave her strength to use her crutches. From two crutches she soon went to one crutch and a cane, then to the cane, and finally laid aside the cane. She weighed 63 pounds when she went to the infirmary, and now she weighs 103. Her limb that had wasted and withered is nearly the same size as the other.

As to the history of the case I can refer to our pastor, Rev. Dr. W. T. Ferguson, of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, Bowling Green, Kentucky."

We certainly advise against the neglect of lameness, however slight, especially in a child. It is true that the osteopathic physician is able to find causes for such troubles that the medical doctor fails to find. He is trained to this work. Many cases of Epilepsy and other troubles that the medical profession do not pretend to cure are relieved by osteopathic physicians. It does not matter what you

ENFORCES THE LAW.

Washington Blessed with an Efficient Chief of Police.

Hard on So-Called Gentlemen Who Are Devoted to Gambling and the Excessive Indulgence in Ardent Spirits.

[Special Washington Letter.]

MUSCULAR moral suasion seems to be necessary in some places. In one of the sovereign states of this republic the laws prohibiting the sale of alcoholic and other liquor cannot be enforced without force; hatchets and other implements being used without discrimination or consideration of moral laws. Moral suasion is out of the question in that locality.

When officials charged with the execution of the laws violate or seem to violate their oaths of office, public sentiment often takes the place of law and order. This accounts for the resort of unthinking people to lynch law, which means the violation of all law. Fortunately for the reputation of the national capital the officials here are men of the highest order of integrity and they usually enforce the laws to the best of their ability. We have an unusually efficient chief of police.

Maj. Richard Sylvester was for almost 20 years the Washington correspondent of several western newspapers, while he acted at the same time as chief clerk of police headquarters. In his newspaper work he became well acquainted with the congressman from the Eighteenth congressional district of Ohio, one William McKinley, Jr., and when that congressman became president of our republic he remembered Sylvester and appointed him chief of police of the District of Columbia; and he made no mistake. In making that appointment he selected the man of all men who knew most, practically, about the work of the police department, and a man of superior education, experience and probity of character.

The chairman of the inaugural committee has made Maj. Sylvester chairman of the committee on public order during the inaugural ceremonies; and everybody here approves the selection as a wise one. Our chief of police has already taken steps to conserve the public order during that important ceremonial, and when the time comes his additional special policemen will be thoroughly drilled and instructed concerning the duties which they must rigorously perform; and also concerning the limitations of the authority intrusted to them.

The limitations of police power cannot be too well defined for such an occasion. The writer has in vivid memory an occurrence during the inauguration of President Harrison March 4, 1889, when a domineering mounted policeman, instead of forcing back the crowd at a corner actually drove his horse into a crowd, trampling citizens down and seriously injuring one of the state officials of Wisconsin, who was unavoidably in the crowd because of the loss of his horse by a runaway before the procession started.

But, before preparing for the presidential inauguration, Maj. Sylvester has inaugurated a system of moral suasion which is rather intolerable to gentlemen in the realm of society who are devoted to gambling and excessive indulgence in drinking ardent spirits. He has decided to make gambling practically impossible during inauguration week by employing additional detectives, who will carefully watch for crooks of all sorts; and all suspected gambling places will be closely watched.

Moreover, our chief of police has decided upon a permanent enforcement of the law against the sale and use of liquor after the midnight hour.

MAJ. RICHARD SYLVESTER.
(Chief of Police of the District of Columbia.)

This is not only to apply during inauguration week, but for all time. While saloons are being smashed in another quarter of the country, all unlawful abuse of the liquor selling privilege will be prevented here by the strict administration of the statutory laws by the guardians of the peace. There will be no selling of whisky after midnight, nor on Sundays, at any point nor under any circumstances.

One of the favorite devices of men of means has been to organize social clubs, under the guise of law, and the authorities have recognized certain rights of such alleged clubs. But that is now a matter of past history, of the recent past. The chief of police has decided that not even in these alleged clubs shall liquor be sold at unreasonable and unreasonable hours. This is an innovation which has staggered many of the stagers who have been accustomed to suppose that the laws of the land applied to all others than themselves. From henceforth the men with dollars to burn will have no more right to assassinate their physical strength by the unlawful use of alcoholic poison than the poor and ignorant who dissipate their earnings while those dependent upon them for food and clothing suffer in obscurity and miserable silence.

Truth telling is not always popular, but sometimes men who are required to portray real life in the national capital are expected to tell the whole truth without evasion or indirection. This story of the determination of our chief of police would be incomplete without the bald statement that clubs and hotels have long been in the habit of violating the laws. Policemen have been permitted to secretly get their whisky in dark corridors adjoining the barrooms of hotels. They have been admitted by kitchen entrances to club rooms, and have been served with whatever they might choose to order. Then, with the poison in their stomachs, they have been deaf to all that they might otherwise hear.

There are and always have been all sorts of clubs here, the naming of which would require reams of paper. For two or three years there was a press club in this city, but it died almost seven years ago; died under the hammer of an auctioneer. None of the leading correspondents were members of it when it was sold. It had fallen into the hands of men who used it as a gamblers' den, a whisky den, a home for indigent and weaklings, who were alleged to be newspaper men, a place where whisky could be obtained at all hours and on Sundays; and, mirabile dictu, all on credit. The end was inevitable, and the auctioneer had the best of it—better far than the unfortunate creditors.

There have been congressional clubs in almost every hotel. In these places men occupying high official positions, one of them a speaker of the house of representatives, gathered nightly for gambling and drinking. Nobody in the hotel, except the proprietor, would know of the existence of the congressional club. Nevertheless, there would be nightly meetings, where cards would be shuffled until early morning, where wine would be kept constantly opening, and where large stakes of money would constantly change hands. The hotel barrooms were opened all day Sunday, and those who were patrons during the week were welcome on the Sabbath day, although the front doors and blinds were closed. Probably it is so in other cities; it certainly has been so in this city for many years.

Then there have been army and navy clubs, metropolitan, athletic and other clubs, within the walls of which all laws have been set at defiance. But Chief Sylvester has closed all of them, without the use of a hatchet. The governors and managers of all of the clubs know that he will enforce the law. They all know that he can invade their precincts with detectives whom they would not suspect; and that when he issues a police order or regulation he will sleeplessly enforce the edict. Therefore they are not trying to evade the order.

The policemen who have been protecting the hotels have been given warning, and they must fulfill their functions faithfully or lose their positions. Incidentally this will give us a sober police force in those localities, although it must be admitted that even the policemen in hotel precincts are known to have been always on the prudent side of their cups, albeit they have taken their regular drinks without expense to themselves. But no man, in uniform or otherwise, is capable of performing his best functions while alcoholic poison courses through his veins.

In telling the truth about the congressmen and their clubs it would be unfair to permit the people to suppose that all congressmen spend their time and their money in dallying with "wein, weib und gesang." Nor are all of them given to gambling. But it is truth to say that quite a number of them have been so habituated from time immemorial in the brief history of our republic.

One representative, whose term hastens to a close, was taken into a private congressional gathering and robbed of $3,975 between ten p. m. and three a. m. by those whom he called intimate friends. On the following afternoon, when he crawled from under the table, and realized what he had done, all of his checks had been cashed, and he had no redress. It is just as well for him, as well as for his constituents, that he goes out of congress.

TO HEAD OFF A SWINDLER.

He Has Been Posing as Senator Culberson, of Texas, or a Brother of the Senator.

Washington, March 2.—Senator Culberson, of Texas, has been very much annoyed by the actions of a man who is traveling about the country and borrowing money upon the representation that he is either the senator himself or the senator's brother. Letters have been received from various places in the state of New York and from Chicago and Louisville representing that recent calls have been made upon prominent people by the individual in question. He frequently selects for his victims ex-members of the house of representatives who knew the senator's father there, and appears to have no difficulty in securing fair-sized sums from them. Senator Culberson says that he has only one brother, Robert U. Culberson, who resides in San Antonio, Tex., and that he (the senator) has not been traveling recently. He asks that friends of his advance no money to others on his account.

Proposed Alliance with England.

The old time remedy enriches the blood, steadies the nerves, and increases the appetite. Try it for dyspepsia and indigestion.

Another Proof That It Pays.

What pays? Why, advertising in this paper. A letter from the makers of Cascarets calls attention to the fact that within five years the sales have grown from nothing to six million boxes last year. This goes to show if you have an article of real merit like Cascarets, advertise it properly and liberally and let all the people know about it, it is sure to bring big results. Readers who have never tried this famous remedy are urged to try it, because in this busy, every day life of ours, we all need something now and then to help nature and there is no better medicine in the world than Cascarets to stimulate the liver and bowels gently and naturally into healthy action.

Where Danger Lurked.

A little girl from Memphis who has spent her life in the city went out to visit her grandparents, living in the country, during the holidays, and as usually happens in such cases, the little city lady displayed her ignorance.

The little girl, soon after her arrival in the country, manifested great apprehension of being hooked by the cows about the place. One day her mother told her to go to a neighbor's home and carry a message. The little girl started, but at the gate she encountered a cow, one of the milky species.

In great excitement she ran back to her mother, crying: "Oh, mamma, there's a cow down there!"
The mother looked out of the window and saw the meek-looking bovine.

"Why, daughter, that's a milky cow. She hasn't any horns and can't hook you." "But, mamma," exclaimed the child, "she hasn't any horns, but she might hook me with her pompadour!"—Memphis Scimitar.

HELP FOR WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED.

Mrs. Ella Rice, of Chelsea, Wis., whose portrait we publish, writes that she suffered for two years with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and had all kinds of miserable feelings, all of which was caused by falling and inflammation of the womb, and after doctoring with physicians and numerous medicines she was entirely cured by Proof is monumental that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine for suffering women. It Laid the Ghost.

During a confirmation tour in the diocese of Peterborough the late bishop of London put up one evening at an old manor house, and slept in a room supposed to be haunted. Next morning at breakfast the bishop was asked whether he had seen the ghost. "Yes," he replied with great solemnity, "but I have laid the spirit; it will never trouble you again." Being further questioned upon the subject, the bishop said: "The ghost immediately vanished when I asked for a subscription toward the restoration of Peterborough cathedral."—Argonaut.

LAST LEGISLATIVE DAY.

The Two Houses of Congress Assemble Early in an Effort to Close Up Business.

SOME LOOKED THE WORSE FOR WEAR.

The Galleries Thronged with People Who Have Arrived at the Capital to Witness the Inauguration Proceedings and Participate in the Festivities.

Washington, March 2.—It was a weary senate that convened at 11 o'clock to begin the proceedings of the last legislative day of the Fifty-sixth congress. Senators, red-eyed and tired looking, showed the effect of the heavy strain of the past week. Curiously enough many of the older senators exhibited less evidence of the hard work and loss of sleep than some of their younger colleagues.

The galleries were thronged with people who are here to attend the inauguration ceremonies.

HOUSE.

The house reconvened at nine o'clock, after the recess taken Friday night. It had been agreed that the two hours from 9 to 11 should be devoted to unanimous consent legislation. Owing to the unusually early hour of meeting the hall was almost empty when the speaker dropped the gavel, but the fact that members were to have an opportunity to pass bills by consent was a great inducement, and within a few minutes they began arriving, each with a bill in his hand. After bills had been passed to amend the Chinese exclusion act; to authorize the striking of medals for the Spanish war heroes; to authorize the deposit of moneys collected from customs in authorized government depositories and to authorize the appointment of Thomas Lutz Stitts as an officer in the navy, Mr. Bailey (Tex.) objected to action upon all bills by unanimous consent. He was appealed to on all sides not to block proceedings, but he refused to yield. The speaker then recognized Mr. Sperry (Conn.) to move the passage under suspension of the rules of the senate bill to prohibit the sale of firearms, opium and intoxicating liquors in certain islands of the Pacific.

Mr. Bailey demanded a second, and then brought matters to a complete standstill by making the point of no quorum. A call of the house was ordered and the sergeant-at-arms was instructed to bring in absentees.

It was 10:20 before enough members were brought in to make up the quorum. Mr. Sperry then proceeded to explain that the bill was designed to prevent the sale, by Americans, of firearms and intoxicants to the aborigines of the New Hebrides.

Mr. Bailey declared that the men behind the pending bill were not entirely sincere in trying to protect savages from the baneful influences of intoxicating liquors. Why were not the Philippines and the Hawaiian islands included? He understood that since the American regime began there over 1,000 saloons had sprung up in Manila. In Hawaii, where saloons were unknown until we "benevolently assimilated" them, there were now over 400 saloons. Mr. Bailey contended that offenders under the bill could not be punished. They could not be tried in any federal court in America in spite of the fiction in the bill that such offenses should be considered to have been committed on the high seas.

Mr. Gillett (Mass.), in reply to Mr. Bailey's suggestion regarding the legal phase of the bill, said that the "fiction" was copied from law applying to the Guano island, which had been sustained by the supreme court.

The bill was defeated, 117 to 79, two-thirds not having voted in the affirmative. It was 11:10 when the roll call was completed and the result was announced. As the regular hour for meeting (11 o'clock) had already passed the house could not adjourn so the legislative day of Friday continued. As the house will not adjourn again until the sine die adjournment at noon Monday there will be no Saturday in the house proceedings.

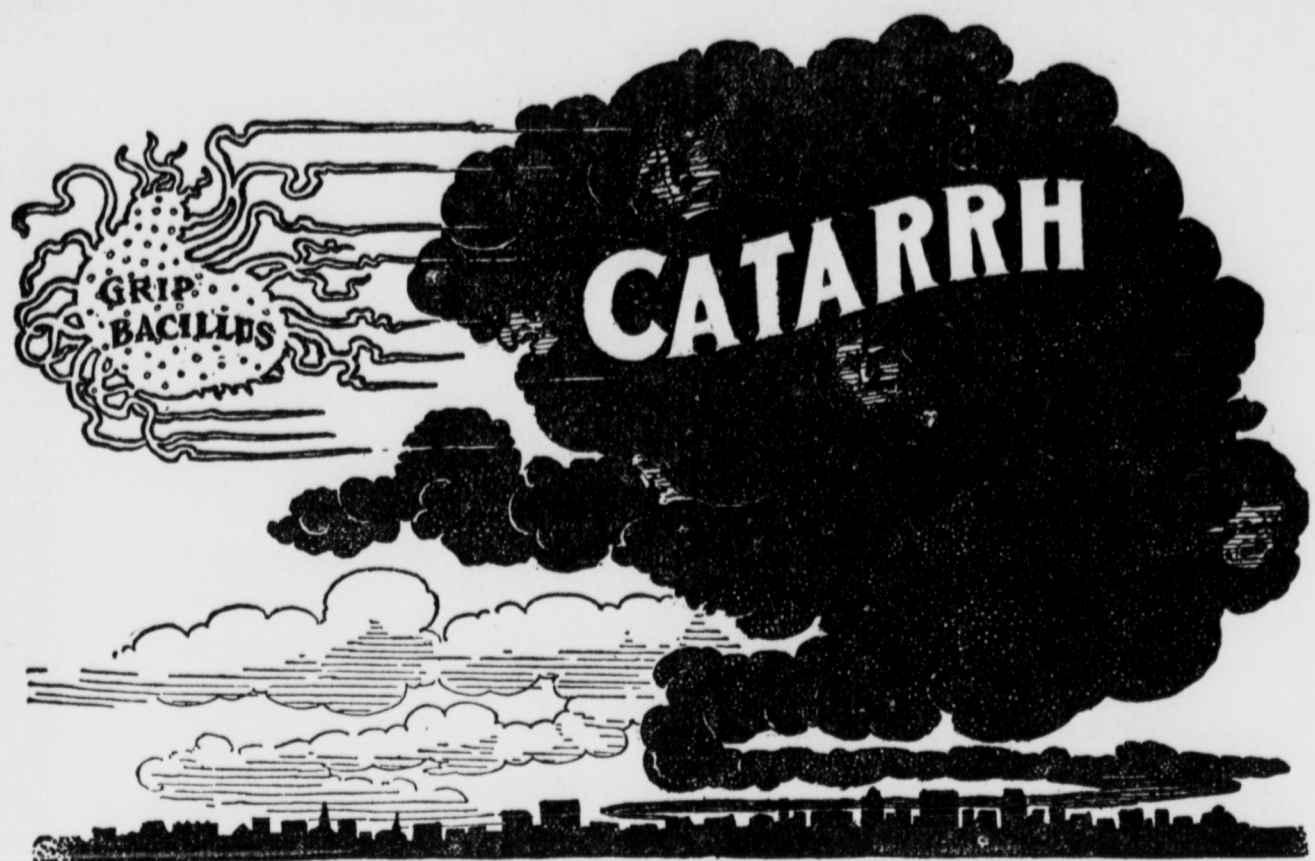

Mr. Mercer (Neb.) chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds was recognized and moved the passage under suspension of the rules of the omnibus public building bill.

AFTER THE GRIP COMES CATARRH.

LIKE A TERRIBLE CYCLONE grip bacillus has passed over our country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, leaving behind it a dark cloud of anguish and despair.

Catarrh follows grip as effect follows cause.

A multitude of catarrh victims will spring up in the trail of the awful epidemic of grip that has just passed over our fair country.

The hope to these people is Peruna.

Most people know this already.

Everyone who has had the least touch of grip, should not fail to take a course of treatment with Peruna.

Peruna eradicates every vestige of the disease and leaves the system in a normal condition.

Hon. Joseph B. Crowley, Congressman from Illinois, writes from the National Hotel, Washington, D. C., as follows:

"After giving Peruna a fair trial I can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone suffering with coughs, colds, la grippe and all catarrhal complaints."—J. B. Crowley.

Hon. George H. White, Congressman from North Carolina, writes:

"I am more than satisfied with Peruna, and find it to be an excellent remedy for the grip and catarrh. I have used it in my family, and they all join me in recommending it as an excellent remedy."—George H. White.

Mr. J. P. McGrew, Superintendent U. S. Capital Police Force, of Washington, D. C., says:

"Having suffered from the grip, I was advised by a friend to use your Peruna. I also used it for my catarrh, and I can now cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone who is suffering from the grip and catarrh."—J. P. McGrew.

Miss Anna Russell, Past Worthy Counselor, Loyal Mystic Legion, 263 Endicott Building, St. Paul, Minn., writes:

"For years I have unfortunately found my system in a peculiarly receptive condition for catarrh when I was exposed in any way to inclement weather. At those times I would be severely afflicted with la grippe and its unpleasant consequences."

"Now for the past year and a half I have used Peruna in such cases and have found that it not only cures me quickly, but it also cleanses my blood and renders me less liable to catch cold. It is the finest preventive of colds that I know of and a very superior tonic."—Anna Russell.

Miss Alice Dressler, 1313 North Bryant avenue, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"Last spring I suffered from la grippe and was partially cured, but the bad after-effects remained through the summer, and somehow I did not get strong as I was before. In the fall I caught a cold after getting my feet wet and attending a lecture in a cold hall, and I suffered a relapse. An unpleasant catarrh of the head and throat followed, and as I was in a weak condition physically previous to this, it took but little to break me down completely."

"One of my college friends who was visiting me, asked me to try Peruna, and I did so and found it all and more than I had expected. It not only cured me of the catarrh, but restored me to perfect health, built up the entire system, and brought a happy feeling of buoyancy which I had not known for years."—Miss Alice Dressler.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis. Address: Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

WONDERFUL CURE OF PSORIASIS.

As a sufferer for thirty years from the worst form of Psoriasis, finally cured by Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment, I wish to tell you my experience, that others may benefit by it. I was so grievously afflicted that the matter that exuded from my pores after the scales had peeled off, would cause my underclothing to actually gum to my body. After remaining in one position, sitting or lying down, for an hour or two, the flesh on my elbows and knees would split, so thick and hard would the crusty scales become. The humiliation I experienced, to say nothing of physical agony, was something frightful. The detached scales would fairly rain from my coat sleeves. I have read none of your testimonials that appear to represent a case so bad as mine. But as to the cure. I commenced bathing in hot Cuticura Soap suds night and morning, applied the Cuticura Ointment, and then wrapped myself in a sheet. In two weeks my skin was almost blood red in color, but smooth and without scales. Patches of natural colored skin began to appear, and in less than a month I was cured. I am now passed forty years of age and have skin as soft and smooth as a baby's. Hoping that others may benefit by my experience, and regretting that sensitiveness forbids me from disclosing my name, I am yours gratefully,
J. H. M., Boston, Mass., Sept. 30, 1900.

AMERICA A WORLD POWER.

Oration of Hickman Walker, Winner of Gold Medal in Oratorical
Contest Feb. 22.

There has been a phrase much upon the American tongue in these late days—America, a world power. It rings from the forum, from the pulpit, from the home; from the aged grandsires to the toddling grandchild—from all come the choruses, America, a world power, until the very atmosphere resounds it and the heavens echo it and all America is drunk with pride.

There is no doubt as to our country standing clearly a giant among the greatest nations of the earth. See it as it reaches from ocean to ocean, bearing luxuriously every product known to man. See the mighty rivers, mountain born, flowing towards the sea. See its azure lakes, rippling, sparkling, reflecting clearly each trembling star. Behold its towering mountains, "snowy summits, old in story," from whose sides the wild cataracts leap defiantly. Behold its majestic forests, its waving fields of grains, its rolling prairies, the graceful curves of its every hill and dale. Behold America, a land on whom Nature has bestowed a lavish hand, the envy of fairies, God's paradise on earth.

And above all, reposing in the valley's bosom and upon the hillside, in city and hamlet, a free and magnanimous people, a just, a heroic, a fraternal people, who for virtue, power and excellence have found no parallel since time began. A people whose influence is not bounded by the seas, whose voice is listened to with respect, awe, fear, in the councils of the nations, and whose promise brings hope to the slave and fills their breast with dreams of liberty. History can offer no greater and more magnificent spectacle than the American Republic in a beautiful land, inhabited by a people, potent in civilization's destiny.

But was this power, this greatness, this glory acquired in recent years? Was it Dewey's guns that hailed the advent of a new factor in the world's destiny? When Schley on that tranquil Sabbath turned peace into seething hell, and brought victory to American arms, did he proclaim the birth of another world power? Was it on the plains of Santiago, where the conquered Castilian yielded his sword to the triumphant American legions, was it there that we first manifested strength? No, it was not there. Long before the cries of dying Cubans came to our ears every force in true Americanism was with us. Every principle and potency that has entered into the construction of that flag to make it loved and respected throughout the earth was there before we laid in the dust of defeat the apostle of barbarism and the inquisition.

Then, did we become a world power when the old ship of state weathered the storm of the greatest internecine strife ever known to man? When the boys from the Northland and the boys from the Southland met at Gettysburg on the field of fraternal conflict, and the stars and stripes were triumphant over the stars and bars? When the gallant Lee, with bleeding heart and tearful eyes gave up his sword, the hope of the despairing Southern heart, gave it up to the Northern chieftain at Appomattox? No, the survival of civil strife did not make this nation a world power, though the defeat of the Union might have caused the end of our national power. But before the sound of civil war echoed through our mountains, before fraternal blood bedewed our battle plains, it is truth that empires and kingdoms reckoned with America, and the masses of the whole world were moved by our influence.

Then, it is asked, was our coming into greatness when the starry banner waved over the heights of Chapultepec, or floated in exultant victory over the palaces of the Montezumas? Reason and truth answer—no! Certainly the defeat of such a people, weak and unprogressive, as the Mexicans were, could not raise us to the highest pinnacle of power, though the war was for justice.

Then, did this nation become an international potency when we administered a second dose of caution to Great Britain, when Lawrence inspired his comrades with the thrilling words, "Don't give up the ship!" and Perry proved the character of our newly born navy? While the victory over England undoubtedly strengthened our character abroad, yet it can not be reasonably said that it made us a world power, though it may be said that it was proof that we were more than a defenceless infant.

All of these wars which I have mentioned spread the fame of our heroism and the glory of our power abroad over the earth. The daring deeds of valor of American seamen and soldiers, the quick uprising we made against tyranny, the indisputable righteousness of every cause developed and increased our power. Thrones trembled, empires swayed, despotisms were appalled at our unallayed progress and truly Columbia was great.

But before all these things, aye, before we were one nation, with one flag, America became a world power, a potency, even to the remotest corners of earth, where savages roamed and civilization had not displayed its stern hand. When was it? Your souls, your hearts throbbing with patriotism, answer without a single discordant note.

My friends, America became a world power on that bright day when the voice of the watching boy was heard in the thronged streets of the quaint old Quaker city, "Ring, grandfather, ring!" and the bellman, old and gray, stretched forth his withered hand and the iron tongue of Independence Bell spake and proclaimed to the world that the lance of liberty had been flung, full and fair, into the monarch's face, and that America was free and independent forever! It was July 4th, 1776. Why? Because it was then that the only true foundation and basis of our power was set forth to the world. Because then the fearless patriots threw into the stream of human thought a stone, whose ever widening circles of influence have not yet ceased to ripple. It was then because the defiant freemen dared to formulate a charter that has proven a boon to humanity, and which has awakened for the formulators the love of innumerable human hearts; so many that it is the love of the world. And love is power. It was then, because to the influence of the act and the declaration of Independence there are no limits, and the power of their influence has alone been sufficient to make the United States a world power.

America does not lay her claim to greatness in her material wealth nor the thickness of her steel, nor the intrepidity or force of her armies. Monarchies, despotisms, may place their hopes on steel-ribbed men-of-war, or frowning fortresses, or legions whose tramp shall shake the earth, and whose numbers are as many as the sands of the sea. Such is the real foundation of monarchical rule, and such governments may well count their birth among the nations, when the weak of earth associate tyranny and terror with their names, and point to the death-dealing power of their guns in awe. But in a country, built as ours has been, where the people, the masses, are the sovereign power, and the government is the people and the people are the government, there is, there can be no date on which to reckon our entrance among the world powers, save when it rested its policies, its life, its all in the love, the magnanimity of the people.

So let this nation continue to build upon a more solid rock than force. Let it scorn the modes of monarchy and rest secure upon the eternal foundation of love. America—let it not be a synonym for night, but for mercy and justice. And when the frowning ships of England's navy shall sleep in ocean graves, when the martial airs of German armies are funeral notes, when the czar's wealth has fled—long after these things the timid savage in Britain's realm, the cringing soul from the fatherland, and the serf on Russia's snow hills, will with one accord sing praise unto the name of America. Not by threat, not through fear, not at the bayonet's gleam, nor the rifle's sting, but through love and gratitude, will the masses of every land throw themselves at our feet and shout, "Blessed be the name of America!"

Obituary.

The community of Cave Spring has had to mourn the loss of one of its cheery members. Miss Ann Travis, daughter of James Harvey Travis, departed this life Feb. 12, 1901. She died on the very day of her birth, being exactly 25 years of age.

Uncle Harvey, as he is familiarly called, has raised a large family of children, the most of whom still survive. His daughter was not a member of the church, but she had been an earnest seeker of Christ for some time. Many believed ere her final sickness that she was a Christian, but refused to confess what Christ had done for her. In the hour of her departure she expressed to her brother who stood beside her the words of consolation, "I am not afraid to die."

One by one our dearest circles break on earth, but in heaven there will be a renewal of the virtuous and endearing ties of earth. May the blessed Comforter console the aged father, who, standing in the twilight of two worlds, looks beyond the shores of mortal scenes and beholds the sublime radiance of immortality investing his ultimate home. A Friend.

Every woman loves to think of the time when a soft little body, all her own, will nestle in her bosom, fully satisfying the yearning which lies in the heart of every good woman. But yet there is a black cloud hovering about the pretty picture in her mind which fills her with terror. The dread of childbirth takes away much of the joy of motherhood. And yet it need not be so. For sometime there has been upon the market, well-known and recommended by physicians, a liniment called which makes childbirth as simple and easy as nature intended it. It is a strengthening, penetrating liniment, which the skin readily absorbs. It gives the muscles elasticity and vigor, prevents sore breasts, morning sickness and the loss of the girlish figure.

An intelligent mother in Butler, Pa., says: "I would not have Mother's Friend again, I would obtain 12 bottles if I had to pay $5 per bottle for it."
